If there were 4 human souls living in you, wouldn't life be hard enough without having to get to school on time?

Aden Stone isn't crazy, though everyone thinks he is. He isn't talking to himself, rather, the 4 souls that live inside him that all possess unique abilities, each fully capable of screwing with his life. Julian can raise the dead (watch out for those random zombies). Elijah can see the future. Eve can time-travel into the past and change the future (not always for the better). And Caleb can overtake other bodies. Just one of those abilities is enough to make Aden special. But all four?

Add to that the fact that orphaned Aden is starting life again in a new town, at a new school, with only two new friends, teachers that barely stand him, and the souls that reside within him telling him things he doesn't want to hear!.

Will the impending death Elijah sees for him eventuate before he has a chance to free the souls? How does he do that exactly? Does the beautiful vampire princess he has been foreseen kissing actually exist? Can he ever get close enough to the one person who silences his voices without being torn apart by her werewolf protector? And just why does that werewolf skulk away when in the presence of his other only friend?

ABOUT GENA SHOWALTER

Gena Showalter is a New York Times and USA Today bestselling author whose books have appeared on MTV and in Cosmopolitan and Seventeen magazines, as well as Entertainment Weekly. Her novel Red Handed has even been optioned by Sony Television.
